Her focus is on stakeholder management, power structures, self-leadership and expanding self-efficacy, healthy proximity-distance behaviour, conflict management, rethinking leadership, agile leadership and organisational development, transformation and all issues relating to your own career and further development as a manager.

ATTITUDE AND WAY OF WORKING

She has two core beliefs:

Top management is like world class sport. You can only get to the top and stay there with the best possible support. Who would compete at the Olympics without a high level coach?

And:

Life is too short to be in the wrong job. You should go to work with enthusiasm at least three out of five days.

The coaching is designed to help you progress and is intense reflection work with advisory elements. Even if her approach is not always „a walk in the park“ and she doesn't cut corners at the wrong places, her clients tell that they leave always feeling stronger and with new concrete approaches. The goal of her coaching is to become even more successful and to stay healthy and positive. She treats everybody on eye to eye level and with respect. Trust and openness in working with you are equally important to her as confidentiality. In general, she has a positive view of people and is convinced that humor helps – in all situations.
